The London Institute of Skills Development (LISD) invites you to take part in the Applied Research International Conference on Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics & Statistics, Cambridge, United Kingdom

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

As an internationally renowned conference series, the LISD Applied Research International Conferences (ARICON) led forum has developed a strong reputation for its inclusive approach towards researchers at all levels and capabilities. By offering a welcoming and accessible platform for sharing ideas drawn from a wide range of cultural, economic, social and organisational perspectives, our conference encourages all participants to take an active role in the research process, both as contributors and consumers. We invite you cordially to take part in this year's event.

Our selected theme for this conference is Building upon the learning accrued globally from recent events such as the global pandemic and growing international tensions around security and sustainability, we wish to provide an opportunity to re-frame many aspects of daily experience through the lens of Responsible Research and Innovations. We believe the education and enablement of future generations of researchers can provide a platform for real change in society. As ever, we seek to encourage contributions from forward-thinking academics and practitioners wishing to share insights and impactful commentary on the many and varied challenges facing communities around the world.

Contributions are especially welcomed from those active in Education and the Green Economy, for any project where socially responsible research and its impact on communities and stakeholders can be clearly demonstrated. We support and encourage participation from seasoned and novice researchers, recognising the value of innovation and experience in generating research insights.

MISSION STATEMENT

Our long-standing alignment with the tenets of Applied Research International Conference agenda provides an overarching mission for the conference, namely to:

▶ Promote social justice, inclusion, diversity and global networking
▶ Increase the influence of research on policy and practice in key impact areas
▶ Increase the commitment of participants in research via active involvement in all stages of an open, principled and inclusive process of investigation and dissemination of findings

These principles are applied equally to all participants, including researchers, academic observers, delegates and the wider communities touched by research projects explored in the conference.

OBJECTIVES OF THE CONFERENCE

▶ To provide an inclusive platform fostering an active community of researchers collaborating on issues of social significance and societal concern

▶ To advance the principles and practices of Applied Research International Conferences (ARICON) in support of researchers at all stages of their research journey

▶ To provide an open and accessible mechanism for sharing creative contributions to the research agenda across a range of subject matter and discipline areas. The conference is hosted by the London Institute of Skills Development(LISD), and delivered by an experienced committee of internationally renowned academics, practitioners and subject matter experts committed to excellence in conducting and sharing socially responsible research outputs and outcomes.

We have decided to adopt a 'Hybrid' delivery approach, through which delegates and participants can choose to take part either in person (On-Campus) or Virtually LIVE through our proven Zoom platform.

The School's philosophy is enshrined in its slogan:

'Developing People with Skills'.

CALL FOR ABSTRACT/PAPER

Applied Research International Conferences (ARICON) seeks contributions from researchers active in and around the main conference theme of 'Wonders of Science,Technology & Number Games'.

Within this broad thematic orientation, we are looking for papers from active researchers adopting applied or theoretical perspectives in exploring subjects aligned with our core theme. Topic areas we are particularly interested in (but not exclusively committed to) include:

- Sciences
- Technology
- Engineering
- Mathematics & Statistics
- Research on STEM Education

We request that you submit a brief outline / abstract of your proposed contribution (guidelines below) with a view to full participation and delivery of a conference paper (optional) for publication for the Conference Proceedings. This is an excellent opportunity for all researchers, but particularly for early career academics and practitioners to gain profile and prominence in an internationally celebrated within a rapidly growing and inclusive research community. All contributions are peer reviewed and considered on merit for inclusion in the conference. Research in progress are welcome.
